I had a follow-up discussion with the lobbyist for the sorghum growers. What he told me was that their primary issue is that they want earlier engagement in the registration review process, asking that we not focus seemingly exclusively on the registrants. This is one of the many benefits of getting the draft risk assessments issued for public comment. I agreed to work with our re-evaluation division to figure out ways to involve the grower community more effectively in the process.

Were there any other asks from the sorghum growers?

I will say that the one example he provided had to do with imidacloprid and the risk mitigation proposed by Bayer. Well, that is one where we hadn't even engaged with the registrant before they submitted their proposed mitigation package. In fact, their proposal was based upon their own risk assessment and was submitted before we had even issued our assessment for public comment.

Does Ryan have something already on Sorghum or his comment about having some briefing materials referring to PFOA?

Do you know when we could get him the info he seeks?
thanks.

I need to follow up on the Sorghum Producers meeting regarding their pesticide concern and get some paper for the Administrator on PFOA/PFOS prioritization under TSCA or how the EPA is evaluating these with the Office of Water. We received some briefing materials but not enough which is going to answer questions from Capitol Hill.
